

Dr. Florica Bodiștean is Associate Professor at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences of “Aurel Vlaicu” University, Arad, tenured for the following courses: Theory of Literature, Comparative Literature and Stylistics of Poetic Texts; Doctor in Philology since 2000. She has published the following books: Marin Preda or About the Complexes of Creation (doctoral thesis, 2002), A Theory of Literature (2005, second edition – 2008), Poetics of Literary Genres (2006, second edition – 2009), Literature for Children and Adolescents Beyond “Story” (2007). She has participated in numerous international scientific conferences with works centered on the portrayals of femininity in the heroic epic, a theme which represents her present research subject: The Greatness and Fall of Chivalrous Structures in the Cloak-and-Dagger Novel: The Three Musketeers, by Alexandre Dumas („Culture and Communication: Interferences and Confluences”, Chișinău, 2012), Don Quixote and the Renaissance Woman (“Research and Education in the Innovation Era”, Arad, 2010), Facets of the Feminine Between Myth and Official Ideology in Vergilius’s Aeneid (“Man and Myth” Suceava, 2009), The Image of Woman in the Homeric World (“Research and Education in the Innovation Era”, Arad, 2008).

Hristo Boev was born in Plovdiv, Bulgaria in 1973. He graduated from Plovdiv University in 1997 obtaining an MA in English Philology. He is currently a 3rd year doctoral student at the Faculty of Letters at Ovidius University, Constanta, Romania. His interests are in the field of Modern British and American Literature, Romanian Literature between the Wars, Translation and Cultural Studies. He is a teacher of English Language and Literature, translator and editor in Bulgarian, English and Romanian. Apart from his academic interests, he is also an avid reader and short story writer in English. He actively participates in conferences on Literature and Linguistics. His main publications are on Dickens in Victorian Web, <http://www.victorianweb.org/>.

Dr. Gabriela Brozbă is a teaching assistant in ESP (mainly English for business and economics) at the Department of Foreign Languages, Romanian-American University, Romania. Starting from October 2012, she is also a teaching associate in English Phonetics and Phonology at the Department of English of the Faculty of Foreign Languages and Literatures, the University of Bucharest. She earned her PhD degree in Philology at the University of Bucharest in September 2011. Her main research interests include phonetics and phonology, non-native Englishes, sociolinguistics, speech analysis, dialectal variation, optimality theory and historical linguistics, among others. She has attended various national and international conferences, colloquia, workshops and summer schools. She is the author of two published books: Between Reality and Myth: A Corpus-based Analysis of the Stereotypic Image of Some Romanian Ethnic Minorities. München, 2010, and The Phonology of New Englishes. Bucharest, Editura Universității din București, 2012.

Dr. Alina Buzatu teaches Theory of Literature at Ovidius University Constanța, Faculty of Letters. She earned her PhD degree at the University of Bucharest in 2007, with a thesis on Romanian Surrealism and Gellu Naum. She published 3 volumes, several scientific studies and articles and co-authored a course in Theory of Literature. She has participated in numerous national and international conferences, colloquia and workshops. Her interdisciplinary research interests include pragmasemiotics, poststructuralism, the intellectual history of the 20th century, comparative mentalities and cognitive studies.

Adrian Cataros is Assistant Professor at the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures at the Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University Constanta. He is preparing a doctoral thesis on French drama (Communication et infra-communication dans le théâtre d'Eugène Ionesco) at Paris 8. He teaches Practical French Courses, French Literature, Contemporary French Language and Textual Strategies seminars. He is a member of ACLIF and an editor on the board of Synergies Roumanie. Articles pending publication include: « Le théâtre d'Eugène Ionesco – vers une nouvelle catharsis », « Ionesco et les metteurs en scène », « Eugène Ionesco, un précurseur du théâtre contemporain » and « Brecht et Ionesco – deux visions théâtrales opposées ».

Dr. Estella Antoaneta Ciobanu, Department of Modern Languages and Communication Sciences, Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University of Constanta, teaches Identity and Gender in the U.S., Religion in the U.S., and Theories of Culture: Postmodernism and the Postmodern Discourse. She earned her PhD degree at the University of Bucharest in 2011, with the thesis “The Body Spectacular in Medieval English Theatre”. Recent publications include: The Spectacle of the Body in Late Medieval England (Iași: Lumen, 2012); (with Petru Golban) A Short History of Literary Criticism (Kütahya, Turkey: Üç Mart Press, 2008). She has published articles on medieval culture, medieval and post-medieval cartography, and representations of the body in European culture.

Dr. Tatiana Golban is a Lecturer in British and comparative literature at Namik Kemal University in Tekirdag, Turkey. Her PhD dissertation on The Myth of Electra in Ancient and Modern Drama has been published in book form, and she has also produced articles on such authors as Euripides, Fay Weldon, Timberlake Wertenbaker, Danilo Kiš, and Milan Kundera. Her main research interests include literary myth, ancient drama, modern drama, and contemporary fiction.

Dr. Ileana Jitaru is a Lecturer at the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures and Communication Sciences at the Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University of Constanta, Romania. She earned a doctoral degree in Philology in 2008 with a thesis on film adaptations, more precisely on the translation of American novels into American films. Her teaching covers interdisciplinary areas like Mass Media Studies, Film Studies, Translation and Interpreting. She has attended several national and international conferences, seminars, and has written papers on topics related to literature, film and media communication.

Dr. Mihaela Miron-Fulea is Associate Professor in the Department of Romanian Philology, Classical and Balkan Languages, Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University Constanta. She earned her PhD degree at the University of Bucharest in 2005 with a thesis on Pragmasemantics of the N(ominal) G(roup). Her research portfolio includes 6 volumes published in Romania and numerous scientific studies and articles indexed in international databases. She co-authored 12 volumes published by prestigious Romanian and international publishing houses. She has been a member in national and international scientific projects and attended various national and international conferences, colloquia and workshops. Her research focuses aspects linked with pragmasemantics, the semantic – syntax interface, multilingualism and communication. She teaches Semantics and Lexicology, Pragmatics, General Linguistics, Morphology, Syntax – for undergraduate studies, Pragmasemantics of the N(ominal) G(roup), Cognitive Pragmatics, Strategies of Intercultural Dialogue, Multilingualism and Communication – for graduate studies.

Dr. Maria-Elena Muscan teaches courses in German Contemporary Language and Translation Studies at Ovidius University in Constanta. She is a member of the National Mixed Committee for the Promotion of German in the Romanian Educational System, established by the Ministry's Order No. 4151/31.05.2006, member of the National Board of the Romanian Germanists Society, authorized examiner for language competence certificates of the Goethe Institut (levels A1-C1) and National Teacher Trainer for the German language. She earned a Magna Cum Laude PhD in Philology with the thesis Translation as a cultural transfer. German-Romanian Contrastive Study, at Bucharest University, 2007.

Karam Nayeypour is a PhD candidate in British Culture and Literature at Karadeniz Technique University in Turkey. He has taught English Literature for about five years. His research interests lie in Postclassical Narratology, Contemporary British Fiction, and Persian Literature. He is a member of European Narratology Network.

Dr. Veronica Cristina Nedelcu is Lecturer in the Department of Romanian Department of Romanian Philology, Classical and Balkan Languages, Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University Constanța. She earned her PhD degree at the University of Bucharest in 2011, with a thesis on Romanian adverb. She is the author of two books: Să învățăm limba română. Manual pentru studenții străini, first level (beginner), Cartea Universitară, București, 2006 (authors: Ana Marin și Veronica Nedelcu) and Romence Öğrenelim, Yabancılar İçin Ders kitabı Seviye I (yeni başlayan) (Să învățăm limba română, Manual pentru străini, firstlevel (beginner), (Romanian-Turkish manual), Golden Publishing House, Constanța (Ana Marin, Ciden-Sena Menabit, Veronica Nedelcu), 2007 (reed. 2008, 2009). She has also published a number of scientific studies and articles and participated in national and international conferences and colloquia. Since 1996, she has been teaching General Linguistics, Contemporary Romanian Language and Romanian as a foreign language.

Dr. Andreea Poenaru earned her PhD degree at Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi in 2012, with the thesis “Puritan New England. Time and Space in Literary Productions”. Her publications include: Mary Rowlandson's Captivity Narrative: A Bunyanesque Journey towards Redemption (in Bunyan Studies no. 14, CPI Antony Rowe, UK, 2011) Revengeful Violence-Hannah Duston's Captivity Narrative and the Puritan Paradox (RJES 9/2012); “Mary Rowlandson’s Captivity Narrative. Dissent and Liminality” in The American Tradition of Descent/Dissent: The Underground, the Countercultural, the (Anti)Utopian. A Collection of Essays (Iasi: Institutul European, 2012). The author has published articles on Puritan culture, politics, and gender.

Dr. Nicoleta Stanca is Lecturer at the Faculty of Letters, Ovidius University Constanța, where she teaches nineteenth-century Victorian culture, twentieth-century English and Irish literature and (American) popular culture. She holds a Ph.D. degree from Alexandru Ioan Cuza University, Iași. She has published a book-length study on Seamus Heaney, Duality of Vision in Seamus Heaney's Writings (2009), and a number of articles on Irish literature and culture in academic volumes and journals in Romania. She has participated in national and international conferences. She is a member of Ireland-Romania Network, of the Romanian Association for American Studies and of the Romanian Society for English and American Studies.

Dr. Mariana Tocioa has been an assistant professor of Journalism at the Faculty of Letters of Ovidius University, Constanta since 2005. She holds a doctorate since April 2012, with the following thesis: “The pragmatics of political discourse in the local written media”. Since 2007, she has been a member of the Romanian Association of Media History and of the Association of Trainers in Journalism and Communication, Bucharest. Her research interests include pragmatics of journalistic discourse, mass media semiotics, advertising, media history. Her publications include: “Discourse Strategies in Media Political Articles” in Journalism and Communication, “Action and persuasion in the acts of political language from local media” in Mass media, language, culture and access to reality, “Feminine myth in political advertising”, “Macedonian – Romanian Almanac at the beginning of first decade, 1900-1903”.

Dr. M. Zeki Cirakli, holding his PhD in English Literature from METU, is an Assistant Professor at KTU, Faculty of Western Languages and Literature. His major research interests lie in Narratology, Contemporary Literary Theory and Modern Turkish Literature. He is the translator of Paul de Man's Allegories of Reading. He has published a number of articles and translations in journals of literature.