Abstract: In this paper we try to clarify the mechanisms of programming languages starting from the general concepts, the alphabet and vocabulary, syntax and the semantics of artificial languages compared to natural languages. Within programming languages we analyze metalanguage elements, the combinations of letters, numbers, word categories, the set of symbols and the commands used in the program.