

Abstract: The study addresses the manner in which the linguist E. Coşeriu deconstructs the complicated issue of the so-called “Moldavian language”. Through genealogical, typological and of complex linguistic arguments, the scholar proves that it is a false problem, as the discussed idiom is obviously a variant dialect of Romanian.

Keywords: “Moldavian language”, E. Coseriu, language policy, research ethics